MADE TO LAST

Whatever your preconceived notions about traditional bridalwear is, well, thrash it. The real cool couples walking down the aisle in 2020 don't outfit in standard designer fares that millions of other brides and grooms have picked out. The real insiders do so in all-white that is blessed by the fashion gods themselves. And yes, no one said a bodysuit isn't appropriate for the occasion either.

FLIP THE SCRIPT

The last time flip phones were in fashion, camcorders were still in vogue too – yes, it has been that long. This year, Samsung's bringing the extendable mobile device back for nostalgia's sake with a new look touchscreen edition that combines the memories of the past with the tech of the present. Furthermore, the invitation of Thom Browne and its signature American-coloured stripes lavished on a special edition ensures that the in-crowd's paying attention now.

TRIP THE LIGHT

We're not saying that 007 knows squat about tailoring, but if he's keeping up with the times - and performing all those action-packed moves - then surely he would agree that his resident tailor needs to do better than another black, blue, or grey. While it would be a stretch of the imagination if Bond suits up in an on-trend tie-dye look but something in on-trend ought to fit right in. This blazer by Givenchy refreshes his blues, and just in case he needs to make a run for it, his trousers are actually comfy joggers and his choice leather footwear are robust combat boots.

HOMEBOY BOUNCE

Let's not pretend you don't already own a blue suit. After all, it's one colour that's considered a fixture in the menswear circle and won't go out of style even if the pandemic forces you to only wear it in the crib and over Zoom calls for the rest of 2020. But it is also because of this foreseeable WTH scenario that you're considering swapping your skinny fits or even regular variants for something roomier and more relaxed than your usual boardroom pickings. Think of this as your new formal fit, an oversized silhouette that's simply the most comfortable home-based workwear you'll ever have.
